

FRIGHTFUL FALL CAUSES DEATH OF BRIDGE CARPENTER

Richard Rogers Dies at Hospital of Fractured Skull.

LLOYD PHELPS UNCONSCIOUS AND WILL PROBABLY NOT RECOVER

Richard Rogers, a bridge carpenter who has been working on a bridge on the Zuni Mountain railway being constructed by Contractor M. C. Westbrook, near Ketter, died at 11 o'clock last night in St. Joseph's hospital in this city as the result of a fall received while at work on the bridge. Rogers' skull was fractured, he was fearfully bruised and never regained consciousness after the accident. He was brought to Albuquerque on No. 2 yesterday morning.

Lloyd Phelps, a laborer with the bridge gang, was also brought in with Rogers with a similar injury, and at a late hour last night had not regained consciousness. He was not expected to live, at last account.

The men were on the framework of the bridge when some timbers gave way and they both were precipitated about thirty-two feet into a rocky gulch, alighting on their heads with heavy timbers above them. The men were not killed outright, as the fall was a frightful one, and enough to break every bone in their bodies.

The men were attended by Dr. M. K. Wylder, physician for the American Lumber company, which is building the bridge.

Rogers leaves a family at Sulphur Springs, in the Texas country, and the body will be taken there for interment. Phelps was a "rounder" and little is known of his family.

BURGLAR SCARE GRADUALLY SUBSIDING

CHINAMAN'S SUIT CASE IS LIFTED IN RESTAURANT—CHARLES OLIPHANT IN A SCRAP.

"I have patrolled the east end of town for the last hour and didn't meet a solitary individual, burglar or otherwise," said a local police officer to the Journal last evening.

"Just for curiosity, I was detailed for a quiet stroll through the Home-moon Row district and other streets in that part of the city where the burglar alarms have been coming in most frequently," he went on. "I never saw such a quiet, well-behaved locality in my life. It was so absolutely still that you could hear the clocks ticking in the houses. I think the burglars have left off operations completely, at least in that end of town."

No more burglar alarms were received last night, although a lone, lone Chinaman did report the loss of a suit case in a second street restaurant. But then a Chinaman is not expected to have a suit case, and someone may have carried it off by mistake.

The recent robberies have put every housekeeper in town on the alert and back doors and windows were never looked after so carefully. The police are exercising extra vigilance and it is hoped that the crisis is passed.

In police court yesterday morning a solitary candidate appeared before the judge. His name was Charles Oliphant and he was fined five dollars for assaulting a fellow employee in the London Club livery stable.

"Shakespeare Water Cure"

The next and best attraction for the Albuquerque public is the burlesque comedy in three acts, "SHAKESPEARE WATER CURE."

The most tragic parts in Macbeth, Romeo and Juliet, Merchant of Venice, Hamlet and Othello are faithfully carried out and enough comedy to balance the parts admirably. The "Ghost Scene" in Hamlet, the balcony scene in Romeo and Juliet, the trial scene in the Merchant of Venice, and the death of Desdemona lived up to faithfully as laid down in the best acting manuscript of the Bard of Avon.

The Lyric Quartet composed of Messrs. John W. Beane, J. M. Heisterington, J. S. Sively and Al King in the latest ballads will be worth hearing.

St. Mary's hall on North Sixth street will be taxed to its full capacity.

The cast is as follows in order of stage appearance:

DIPPING CURES HORSES OF MANGE

SUCCESSFUL WORK OF LAS VEGAS MEN ON SAN MIGUEL COUNTY RANGE.

Nearly two years ago several prominent stockmen of San Miguel county called the attention of the cattle sanitary board to the prevalence among the horses running upon the ranges near Las Vegas of some skin disease similar to mange in cattle and scrub in sheep, says the Las Vegas Optic.

Subsequently Judge Long and the late Hon. Frank A. Manuagres, representative of the trustees of the Las Vegas land grant, appeared before a meeting of the cattle sanitary board and argued upon the importance of some radical steps to control the disease, which they stated was rapidly spreading among the horses in San Miguel county and becoming a serious menace.

The board directed the territorial veterinarian to make a thorough investigation of the conditions, which was done, and it was found that fully seventy-five per cent of the range horses in the immediate vicinity of Las Vegas were afflicted with the disease and that many horses in private stables right in the city itself were suffering from mange.

Dr. Stenness reported that the condition of many of the range horses was pitiable, their necks and shoulders being all raw and bleeding where the poor animals had scratched and rubbed in their attempts to alleviate their sufferings by scratching on posts, trees, rocks or any convenient object, and even biting the sore places with their teeth.

The board, however, found themselves powerless to act under existing laws as oddly enough all provisions for stamping out diseases among domestic animals specified cattle and sheep only, leaving out horses entirely.

Later on the grant trustees addressed a letter to the board urging them to draw up and have the coming legislature pass such a law as would cover the case in order that the disease might be eradicated.

Such a bill was drawn up and introduced by Hon. John S. Clark, and quickly passed by the last legislative assembly, and under its provisions the board has made very satisfactory progress towards cleaning up the disease.

The first difficulty encountered was the lack of a suitable vat in which to dip the horses, the disease being cured the same as when by dipping in a solution of kerosene and lime.

It was very apparent that a public dipping plant would have to be established at some central point in the county, as no owner would or could go to the heavy expense of erecting a dip for horses alone.

To this end the board decided to erect a dip themselves where all horses could be treated, but found it a hard matter to obtain a suitable location for the plant. After considerable urging Hon. Secundino Romero consented to allow the vat to be erected at his sheep dipping plant at Casa Grande, about eighteen miles from Las Vegas.

The dip was erected and owners of horses notified through the papers that all horses must be dipped within forty days or failing to do so they would be treated by the board at the owner's expense.

Few of the owners of range horses availed themselves of the law and the board was finally forced to employ men to go upon the ranges, round up the horses and dip them.

This was done and several hundred head of range horses were gathered, dipped and held for the costs of the work, which in almost every case were paid by owners and the horses returned over to them, only twelve or fifteen head being left upon the board's hands unclaimed.

The result of the season's work is that fully two-thirds of the range horses in the diseased district have been dipped and cured. The cold weather has put an end to the work for this year, but early next spring the work will be resumed.

It is the general opinion of stockmen about here that no less than a thousand head of horses died last year on the Las Vegas ranges as a result of the disease, which in itself does not kill them but so weakens their strength and vitality that they fall easy prey to a hard winter such as the last one was.

When they occurred there was no let up to the aching, and naturally I was on the look-out for something to check the trouble, if not radically dispose of it. The last medicine I tried was Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the Alvarado Pharmacy. To say that they are worth recommending freely expresses my opinion of them. They quickly removed the trouble."

new design to "replace" the old medals. This language the attorney general construes to mean that the new medals are to be issued only in case the old ones are lost or destroyed or surrendered by the holders. It does not mean, according to the opinion, that the holder must surrender his old medal and must accept one of the new issue.
